ATTORNEY GENERAL WICKER-SHAM MAKES STATEMENT TO THIS EFFECT SPEAKING OF THE BIG TRUSTS.

AFFECTED THE MARKET

New York Stock Exchange Felt Influence of Tobacco Decision—Great Northern to Issue Big Mortgage for Improvements.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Washington, May 31.—The recent decision of the supreme court in the Standard Oil and Tobacco cases will result in a sweeping attempt to secure criminal conviction of the violators of the anti-trust law, according to Attorney General Wickersham, who appeared before the house committee on expenditures in the department of justice.

Wickersham testified he had "advised the United States Steel Corporation on several occasions during its connection with the firm of Strong & Cadwallader and also he had received his share of fee turned into the firm for services to the American Sugar Refining company, personally attended to by Henry W. Taft, brother of President Taft. Wickersham said his share was $26,000.

Prices Break. New York, May 31.—The tobacco decision, the reduction of prices of steel products, and fears of further investigations of industrial corporations caused violent price fluctuations on the stock exchange today.

The most spectacular losses occurred on the "Curb," where American Tobacco dropped 82 points, to 418.

It is reckoned the depreciation in American Tobacco showed a shrinkage of values of a hundred and two million dollars.

Up to noon the bond sales totalled $2,750,000, largely tobacco issues, and the stock sales were half a million shares.

Later, American Tobacco recovered to 430 and the entire market gathered strength.

Flurry Was General. The supreme court decision in the tobacco case caused an advance to 81 1/2 in American Tobacco four, while preferred dropped a point.

Later the market broke under de-luge selling orders induced by profit-taking, and fears further investigations into industrial corporations and business that arose by violent fluctuations in American Tobacco issues.

Large dealings in American Tobacco "four" sent them from 81 1/2, Monday's close, to 93 1/2, with reaction to below 90.

"Sixes" broke seven points, while consolidated Tobacco "fours" jumped five points.

American snuff, preferred, gave way three points, and American Tobacco, preferred, 3 1/2.

On the "Curb," American Tobacco slumped fifty points to 450.

Market closed strong.

OFFICES OF SEVERAL COMPANIES ENTERED BY DARING ROBBERS

Orfordville Business Places Were Visited By Mysterious House Breakers Last Night.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Orfordville, May 31.—No clue can be found to the identity of parties who ransacked two tobacco warehouses, the flour and feed store, the lumber office and the St. Paul depot here at some hour last night. But little was secured by the robbers and mystery surrounds their identity and means of getting in and out of the town.

Nothing was known of the robbery until the proprietors of the several places entered came down to their offices this morning. At the office of the H. M. Howard Tobacco Company, entrance was forced by way of the door and the lock on the safe was knocked off and the safe opened, but nothing taken. The robbers entered the office of the Campbell-Peterson tobacco warehouse by smashing down the door. Here the door was gone through, but nothing was found of any value.

By breaking the glass in the window of the office of the H. M. Wadley flour and feed store, the marauders gained an entrance to that place and after scattering papers and other things contained in the desk about the room, left without obtaining anything of value.

A few cents in change and one dollar's worth of postage stamps were taken from the office of the Brillingham and Hixon Lumber Company, the same method being employed there in getting into the case. The lock in this case was smashed with some heavy instrument.

Both the depot office and the express company's office at the St. Paul depot were broken into. In the case of the ticket office some small change and a few tickets were procured and at the express office the robbers discovered a few quart bottles of whiskey and cases of beer. They left signs of their passage in the latter and the whiskey was taken. The local watchman was on duty until four o'clock in the morning and up until his leaving there was no sign of anything wrong. The sheriff and chief of police at Janesville have been notified and every possible clue will be followed up in an effort to land the perpetrators of the night raid.

There was some talk of the theory that the men entered the town on a hand car and departed in the same way, after having ransacked the several offices, but no trace of any car was found.

Quarrel Over Cattle Getting Into Neighbor's Field Brings About Blows.

It is said that Jones is also nursing ulcers and sundry bruises and did not escape unscathed. Anyway, the fight was a good one while it lasted, they lay down in Afton.

SOLONS OF ASSEMBLY AND SENATE DIVIDE ON HUSTINGS BILL

Hopeless Split Forecasted in Matter of Popular Election of Senators Measure—Altered by Amendments.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., May 31.—With a majority of the senate, practically all of the democrats in both houses and part of the republicans in the assembly holding out for the "Oregon plan" of effecting the election of United States senators by popular vote, a conference between committees of both houses probably will be necessary before the middle is cleared. Recently the assembly adopted amendments to Senator Hastings' bill requiring the senatorial candidate to make one of two statements—that he would support the person receiving the highest number of votes at the primary, regardless of the party, or that he would consider the vote only "advisory" and vote for whomever candidate he pleased. The amendments in effect changed the second statement to read that the candidate would support the "party nominee," leaving it so that if no statement were made at all, it would be understood that the senatorial aspirant would be standing upon substantially the same ground as if he had signed the original "statement No. 2," as to treating the vote as advisory only. Last week the senate refused to concur in the assembly amendments and called for a conference. This will be held this week, and it is expected that the recalcitrant republican members of the assembly will be called upon to stand with the real majority.

Another bone of contention between the two houses is the amended bill changing the law relating to the form of government in cities. The senate has adopted a substitute for the Gilbertson amended bill passed by the assembly, in which the salaries of mayors and councilmen are graded a little lower and the percentage of signatures required for inaugurating a recall election reduced from one-third to one-fourth of the number of votes at the preceding municipal election. In addition, the substitute presents a redrawn bill which apparently is much simpler than the one passed by the senate.

The original intention of the republican majority was to amend the present law so as to permit increased salaries and to add the recall, which is not in the law drawn by Senator Whitehead and passed by the legislature. The situation presented of warring elements, principally on the subject of salaries, is one that will not be cleared up except by a conference, and even in that case it may be difficult to reach an agreement. In the meantime, nearly every city in the state is waiting for amendment of the law, before venturing upon the new system of city government.

As the chief clerks of both houses were given the right to use their discretion regarding the character of measures to be placed on this week's calendars, only minor matters, or measures over which there is no particular contest will be considered tonight. It is doubtful if there will be a quorum in the senate, and the attendance in the assembly also will be light. The next three days, however, will be full of important business for disposal.

EVANSVILLE HONORS DEPARTED VETERANS

Decoration Day Was a Memorable Occasion in Evansville—School Teachers Entertained—Secure Soloists for Concert—Society News.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Evansville, May 31.—The people of Evansville could scarcely have done more to show their respect to the veterans of the G. A. R. or to honor the memory of their fallen comrades than was done today. The city stores were appropriately decorated, while the stars and stripes floated from nearly every home in the city.

A window in the Grange store attracted the attention of all who passed by. It contained a collection which aroused the patriotism of every citizen and was especially admired by the old soldiers. There was a miniature log cabin made to represent the early home of Lincoln, a small cannon on the seat of which were two soldiers, a mounted horse made to represent "Black Beauty," two war horses, three guns and a wounded soldier. The articles were all carved from wood and were the hand work of William Austin, an honored member of the Grand Army. He has resided in Evansville for many years and is now past seventy-one years of age. The collection is a rare one.

Entertained Teachers. Mrs. John Baker, Mrs. Peter Smith and Mrs. G. W. Loyd were hostesses last evening at a six-thirty dinner given for the teachers of the high school and grades. TRIBUTE WAS PAID TO DEPARTED SOLDIERS AT SPECIAL SERVICE

MEMORIAL DAY EXERCISES AT THE MYERS THEATRE WELL ATTENDED.

H. C. BUELL'S ADDRESS

Dover City Band Made Its First Appearance Since Reorganization—Old Time Fife and Drum.

Escorted by the Dover City Band, who had volunteered their services for the day to the old soldiers, members of the G. A. R., marched in their last parade Tuesday through the main streets of the city and back to the Myers Theatre, where impressive Memorial Day exercises were held. Accompanying them was the old time fife and drum corps of the post, who played the inspiring music of the sixties, the music that set men's blood on fire, and the party of youthful patriots, who appeared for the first time on a parade, the citizens of tomorrow, the soldiers of the future, youth and old age marching side by side, made a picture once seen not to be forgotten.

As the procession neared the Myers Theatre, the youthful escort drew aside in two lines, the band stopped to the edge of the walk, and the veterans filed between the rows of boys, headed by their old flag and their drum corps, the first to enter the theatre. The exercises were held in the auditorium, the speaker, Commander C. H. Evans of the William H. Sargent Post, presiding, and after the music by the drum corps, Reverend David Johnston gave a most impressive prayer.

The school boy escort then sang "The Old Guard", which was followed by the reading of the Gettysburg address by E. C. Burnham. Another solo part by Ralph Hulsey with the school boys chorus, and then came the address of the afternoon, delivered by Prof. H. C. Buell. Prof. Buell said:

I have listened to the message of Memorial Day orators, who in years past, have spoken to you from hearts beating with patriotic emotion in words ringing true with eloquent expression of the work of the nation, the work of the world, the work of the human race, who laid down their lives for their country, who lived for their country, who were persons of more than national reputation, others were goodly ministers, or honorable lawyers and statesmen.

A little thought that the supreme honor of addressing you on the fiftieth anniversary of the opening of the greatest war in history would fall upon one following the humble calling of the schoolmaster. If this great patriotic effort and opportunity were placed upon me as an evidence of your regard for my personal fitness to meet this occasion, I could not but wish that you had placed the responsibility upon a better and better shoulder. But when I consider the magnitude and importance of public education as a factor in the life of our nation in perpetuating those principles that were wrought out and fought out in the heroic struggle of the Great Rebellion fifty years ago, when I reflect that patriotism and good citizenship after all are matters which one generation bequeaths to their successors only through the instrumentality of education, I no longer hesitate because of personal modesty or fear that I may be inadequate to meet the demands of the occasion. Instead I rather come before you joyously this afternoon to tell you what I believe you want to know and concerning which you have a right to be informed, viz., how has the leadership and the rank and file of the educators of our country regarded the sacred duty and glorious privileges of their daily contact with the young manhood and womanhood of our land, regarding the great facts and principles, the mighty truths and fundamental doctrines of the history of our nation? Is the lesson of good citizenship inculcated into the minds and hearts of our youth through the schools of America becoming apparent?

First I want to defend the thesis that the American schools from the kindergarten through the high school and on through the university, in all the essential particulars that go to form a broader patriotism and a better citizenship are doing their part in the great advancement of national life and honor. This great work of education for citizenship must be measured by no superficial standards and must be limited to no external ceremonies and observances. It calls for something more than the observance of the day that honors our glorious national emblem on Flag Day. It requires a higher patriotism than a participation in the singing of our national anthems in inspiring melody and harmony. It demands a higher form of service than an active celebration of our national holiday on July 4th. It even claims a higher form of devotion than a love and veneration of our national heroes. It will accept in the last analysis nothing less than the patriotic willingness to both live and die for those institutions and principles that every true American holds dear. This daily living for the higher elements of our national existence, this continual striving for the advancement of those principles that will secure the happiness and prosperity of our people, this eternal struggle of our race to retain the best of its civilization and advance to yet higher things is the most vital problem of our nation everywhere.

To give to the twentieth century in America a race of young people of intelligent patriotic and enabled manhood; and pure, honorable and gracious womanhood is an ideal worthy the efforts of the school, the home, the church and the state. To be engaged in such an enterprise is a privilege worthy our highest effort and our noblest sacrifice.

It is perhaps one of the unexplained principles of our being that each generation like the individual, must repeat the struggle of the human race towards enlightenment. No one can begin where his father left off, but must start at the same ancestral cradle as his forefathers, and he must rise to the highest rung to which his nature is capable of reaching and there play his part in life on the level of his individual capacity. Influenced alone by those forces with which he is surrounded. The philosophy of Garfield, uttered more than a score of years ago in these words: "I love to believe that the characters of men are moulded and inspired by what their fathers have done," would be offensive to me if it were not for the fact that what one's father has done never really grips hold of a boy until he has done something himself. Worthy examples are only of value when emulated and followed. So the task of bringing a race of young manhood and womanhood up to and even surpassing the standard of public service and self sacrifice to the common good of that set by their forefathers is over before us. It is not surprising that you stand appalled at the seeming indifference of the young life about you over the heroism and valor of the past. We will forgive your sigh, nearly of pain, over the inability or even desire of our young American life to share the emotions you feel, or to experience the heart throbs that palpitate so readily within your breasts, when memory recalls those stirring scenes of the sixties to your minds. But rest assured my friends in life, "these dead have not died in vain." Those of us who stand close to the young life of our nation know that it is put to the supreme test today as it was in your time, the boys of our schools would respond to defend their country's honor with as much alacrity and patriotic enthusiasm as did their sires in '61. We saw evidence of this in '98 when our who and far-seeing statesman President William McKinley, after exhausting every available means to preserve peace in Cuba and to accomplish the amelioration of a down-trodden race, issued his call for troops, four boys for every one army volunteer offered their services. And even when only slight rumors of trouble are darkening the horizon, when our President thinks it wise to station an army on our southern border and yet keep his countrymen from hearing the school boys chanting the lit and we feel the reins drawn tight and we know that if a single foreigner, be his skin yellow, or be it white, should land on any spot in the American continent with belligerent intent, a million boys would fly to arms at the first call and a million girls would bid them Goodspeed. Your heroism, my friends, can only become their heroism when they, like you, translate it into action and if they stand ready to give their best services to their country and are willing to give their lives to their country's defense, is not that after all the real test of their patriotism? I rejoice that the young men of our State University have chosen tomorrow for their second contest in the friendly game of ball with the Japanese students of the East. Camp Randall, Wisconsin, has prevailed in our great university and that through the timely intervention of a Rock County soldier boy, your comrade in arms and our assemblyman from Beloit, Mr. Simon Smith. But though youth is thoughtless and sometimes cruel in its indifference, yet at heart it is sound and patriotic. Who knows but what these universally boys may be just anxious to take their yellow brothers' measure this afternoon. God forbid that war should ever be deemed a necessity between our nation and Japan, God grant that peace may be the mission of both nations, but should the issue ever come when Uncle Samuel should decide the yellow-skinned Japs needed a spanking, we know, and they know, that the first ones to respond to the call would be those very school boys who are itching to measure their bats with the Japanese curves upon the diamond at Camp Randall tomorrow. American youth is sometimes thoughtless and inconsiderate, but it is not cowardly and unpatriotic.

It was the football boys of Harvard and Yale, of Princeton and Cornell, together with the cowboys of Texas that followed the thoughtless Colonel up San Juan Hill and bent back forever the old world tide of tyranny and oppression in Cuba. It was the school boys of Harvard who gave their lives for their country, that called forth the greatest commemoration ode in American literature from the poet Lowell. It was the school boys and the light hearted boys of their age that recruited and practically composed every company, regiment and brigade in the entire Northern army. So I am glad for your condition and your attitude with these boys. It is their judgment and not their hearts that are not at fault, for I am sure that you old soldiers can put a crimp in their anatomy yet if they go too far ahead on Memorial Day.

Another responsibility placed upon the conscience of the youth of America is that of giving a correct interpretation to the records of history. You veterans of the Civil war have a right to demand that your achievements be rightly interpreted. There were mighty principles underlying the conflict of the great rebellion. Illustrations have told us that the war of 1861 was the inevitable clash of two ancient civilizations. When our country was settled on the sea board there came to New England the sturdy Puritan from England; and there, with his love of religious liberty and universal freedom, he implanted the doctrines of the Roundheads. This people moved westward along the rivers and through the mountain passes following the routes of commerce until they had peopled this great northwest with a free and democratic civilization. In old Virginia and in the other states of the Southland another class of people planted their homes and settled their plantations. They were the aristocratic Cavalier, whose sires had unheeded their sword against Oliver Cromwell in the 17th century. They, too, moved westward up the river valleys and through mountain passes, bringing their institutions and civilization with them. These two conflicting forces met on the plains of Kansas and war was the result. Old John Brown of Ossawatimie bending over the dying body of his son, who held his rifle to ward off the border ruffian, typifies the conditions on the frontier in the middle of the past century. The clash of arms was the inevitable result of the meeting of these two great divergent peoples. Constitutional lawyers, on the other hand, tell us that the conflicting doctrines respecting state and national rights, was accountable for the war. The Engineer Starritt and Fireman Olson composed the engine crew of the train and Conductor O'Brien was in charge.

FAST BALL GAME WAS SCHEDULED FOR NOON

Baseball at the South Janesville shops, sometimes apocryphal, was expected to break out again at noon today with the third of a series of games between the M. P. D. and yard boys. As usual, before the games excitement was intense and much speculation was made this morning regarding weather conditions as well as the condition of the players following the celebration of yesterday's holiday. Many of the more brilliant ballists on the two teams played in games yesterday, however, and it is thought that they would be in more than top-notch shape for the fray this noon. Tom Dixon, who hails from Bloomington and who in former days is said to have won renown in the big leagues, was slated to occupy the mound for the M. P. D. team. He has a variety of curves which are calculated to puzzle the surest batsmen. Burns was announced as the man behind the bat. The yard men had not officially announced their batteries, but Count and E. Horn are thought to be the probable pair. Should weather conditions be unfavorable the game will be played at noon tomorrow.

"OLD MAN DUST" FINALLY CAPTURED

After Foiling the Police and Posse For a Week He Meets His Waterloo

HERE'S HOW IT HAPPENED

"Old Man Dust," the Town Terror, has at last come to his grief. He had taken things in his own hands and laughed at the futile efforts of the public. But "He who laughs last laughs best."

After a strenuous chase, lasting a whole week, by the Police and the women's vigilance committee, "Old Man Dust" ran up against the "wrong proposition" he has met his Waterloo. His downfall marks one of the greatest advances of our city, for it means almost constant cleanliness. Perhaps the most joyous of all today are our housewives. For it was they who suffered most from his havoc. He had made extra work and worry for them—he had ruined many things in their homes.

They all yelled "Down with Old Man Dust," but they could never settle accounts with him until the advent of Wizard Carpet Clean. Now they can go to their sweeping with all the swiftness and speed they wish, but they'll never raise a speck of dust.

They can hang up their old dust rag, and plan dust day but once a week, instead of every time they sweep. For Wizard Carpet Clean absorbs the dust before it gets a chance to rise and land on everything in the house.

Housewives can use Wizard with utmost safety on the coarsest rugs or carpets, for it harms nothing but dust. With the use of Wizard every time you sweep you will always have a clean, wholesome home, instead of clean floors with dusty walls and furniture.

To get a sample package, free of the master of "Old Man Dust," simply cut the coupon out of the big Wizard ad in this issue and take it to your grocer or department store.

Try it with tomorrow's sweeping—find out what freedom from dust really means—see how it saves your labor of dusting—how it makes your carpets bright and clean—and how much quicker your sweeping is finished. Don't forget the free sample—get to the store bright and early, for the supply is limited.

678 last night. Fireman Smith has returned to work after several days' absence.

Frank Lawson is in Chicago today attending a meeting of the safety committee.

Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul. Engineer Fatter and Fireman Kilgely were the engine crew on train 91 which went out of Janesville this morning.

Engineer Wilkinson and Fireman Kirkpatrick were on the extra, which went out of here at five o'clock this morning.

Engineer James is laying off and Engineer Rooney performed his duties on the yard switch-engine, number 1151.

Engineer Mend is in the place of Engineer Callahan on switch-engine number 3, down town.

Engineer Allen is laying off at present and Engineer Higgins is on the job for runs 72 and 1.

Engineer Evans and Fireman Clark went out this morning at 7:40 on train 194, C. and M. division.

Engineer Gilbert and Fireman took train 162 out of Janesville at 11:15 this morning.

Fireman Martin is at work on the yard switch-engine.

JANESVILLE WON IN AN ELEVEN-INNING CONTEST AT PARK

Kinney's Two-bagger in Eleventh Scored Winning Run in Game Against Beloit at Fair Grounds, 9 to 8.

In the best game of baseball of the season and one of the finest exhibitions the local fans have ever had the opportunity to witness, the Janesville city team yesterday defeated the Beloit city nine, 9 to 8, at the fair grounds in this city. The horsehide was given a terrible pounding yesterday and it took eleven innings to decide the contest in Janesville's favor, but a two-bagger by Kinney scored the winning run. Both sides hit freely and the fielders were kept busy handling long drives. After the first few innings, the match was almost a draw, neither side scoring, and at the end of the ninth the score stood 8 and 8. The tenth inning failed to give the advantage to either Beloit or Janesville, and the eleventh was the final inning for Beloit. Smith then retired the Beloit batters one by one, and Miller came to bat for Janesville. He pounded out a single, but was forced out on second by Jung, who was safe on first. Noel was caught out on a grounder but Jung reached second on the swing. Kinney saved the day by knocking out a two-bagger, which scored Jung.

PARKERS WIPED UP MOOSE OF BELOIT AT YOST PARK

Line City Nine Shut Out by Pen Company Team of Janesville Yesterday Afternoon, 9 to 0.

At Yost park yesterday afternoon the Parker Pen company, in a contest with the Moose team of Beloit, applied a liberal coat of whitewash to their opponents, shutting them out with an 9 to 0 victory. The "Lucky Curve" was infallible yesterday and the game was the locals from the start. Butters, who pitched for the locals, received splendid support and allowed Beloit to hit frequently, relying on the fielders to prevent them from scoring. The Line City nine made a number of errors and had plays and with the hitting done by the Parkers, it was "easy money" for the local team. The teams lined up as follows:

Parker Pen: Hallen, c; Butters, p; Porter, 1b; Sullivan, 2b; Abraham, 3b; Holl, ss; Berger, lf; Nehr, cf; Klusky, rf.

Beloit: Toddish, c; Osgood, p; Burns, ss; Yost, 1b; Engstrom, 2b; Burns, 3b; Hallett, lf; Davis, cf; Spohnholz, rf.

Cubs Victorious.

In a game at Athletic park yesterday the Janesville Cubs took the Janesville Cardinals into camp to the tune of a 9 to 3 score, and seemed to have broken the streak of bad luck which has been following them. The Cubs played an errorless game in the field, breaking away from the habit which they contracted early in the season of making bad plays. Green of the Cubs was in good form and the Cardinals were unable to find his curves. The Cubs tried out some new plays in the match yesterday. The line-up of the Cubs was: Green, p; Piro, c; Hemming, 1b; Sullivan, 2b; Porter, 3b; MacDonald, ss; Eckert, lf; Berger, cf; Brown and Edler, rf. For the Cardinals: Wilson, c; Connell, p; Ryan, ss; Connors, 1b; Cronin, 2b; Nody, 3b; Ritter, lf; Byrne, cf; S. Cronin, rf.

Following the defeat of the Cardinals by the Cubs a team which was hastily organized soon after the contest and which has been termed Erdman's Wonders, defeated the Cubs by the score of two to one. The Cubs made their score in the fifth inning, when Porter came home on an error made by a member of the challenging line. In the seventh inning the Wonders came back with their batting eye and Wilson's two base hit drove in Ryan and another single by the next man brought in Wilson. There were no more scores made:

Whirlwinds Beaten.

In a game at Beloit yesterday the Janesville Whirlwinds received an awful lacing at the hands of the Beloit Nationals, the Line City team scoring fifteen times to four runs gathered by the locals. The Janesville line-up, however, was not complete and had to be filled with players recruited from the crowd, on account of the fact that some of the Whirlwinds failed to whirl fast enough to catch the Interurban car. Next Sunday the Hawer City nine will cross bats with Edgerton.

DETAIL OF REGULARS MAY AID IN MAKING BATTLE INTERESTING

Possibility That a Regular Army Battery Will Be Here for the Military Demonstration.

When the subject of Janesville holding a military celebration this year was first taken up last fall by the United Spanish War Veterans, the question of securing a detail of regulars to take part in the affair was taken up with the authorities at Washington.

Congressman Cooper became interested in the affair and went directly to the War department to see what could be done. Letters were written to President Taft, Senator Stephenson and Senator La Follette by members of the special committee appointed to handle the matter.

Secretary of War Dickinson wrote a personal letter back, stating that it was against the regulations of the war department to detail troops for such a purpose and he did not know of any soldiers being liable to be in the vicinity of Janesville on the dates mentioned.

A few days ago an order was issued ordering batteries from Ft. Sheridan to be at the Sparta reservation for their summer target practice by July first. The committee immediately redoubled their efforts and are being aided by Congressman Cooper, to have this battery, which makes the march overland, stop in Janesville during the three days.

Dispatches and letters have been flying between Janesville and Washington and it is probable that the battery can be secured. If this is so, Janesville will have the pleasure of seeing the crack Milwaukee battery and also one of the best of the three days.

One of the features of the three days decided upon, definitely, is a grand band parade. There will be in the neighborhood of one hundred and fifty skilled musicians in the city July 4th, and it is planned to combine them all into one band, playing the same music and march them through the city. It will be a sight worth witnessing.

The finance committee also report favorably and state that with a very few exceptions they have received support from the business men, manufacturers and professional men in the sale of the bonds. These bonds have all been issued, signed, and will be distributed in a few days when the collections will be made.

The committee will issue an official program this year, twenty thousand being printed for distribution throughout the southern part of the state and in the territory contiguous to Janesville. The program is one of the sources of revenue the committee hopes to have to raise the funds to pay back the bond issue. Two young men have been hired to do the work of the committee to act for them. One of the features of the three days will be the parade of the United Spanish War Veterans, during the day, on Wednesday, with bands and drum corps, and then in the evening of either Monday or Wednesday in their famous "March of the Serpent," the secret organization of the order.

The convention of the United War Veterans will open on Monday and it is expected that fully a thousand delegates and visiting members will be here for the three days. The business sessions will be held on Monday leaving Tuesday free for the big military events of the day and evening. Janesville is well represented on the list of officers this year and there is prospect of several of them being re-elected.

LAKOTA MEMBERS IN BELOIT YESTERDAY

Members of Local Club Entertained by "Aristos" in Beloit Yesterday Afternoon and Evening.

Twenty-five members of the Lakota Club of this city were guests yesterday afternoon and evening of the "Aristos" club a similar organization of young men in Beloit. The party left this city yesterday afternoon and went to Beloit, a park this side of the city of Beloit where the afternoon was spent. Baseball teams representing both clubs took part in a game at the park, the local nine winning an easy victory 29 to 5. The Beloit players had been practicing for some time in anticipation of this event, but two of their star players failed to appear and they were quite weak. Victor Carle, catcher for the Beloit City squad, provided the ball into the creek for a home run on the first time at bat. Twenty hits were made by the Lakotas. The lineup was as follows: Walter Carle, c; Will Burns, p; E. Leary, 1b; George Bennett, 1b; James Hargrove, 2b; Michael Hayes, 2b; Will Langdon, 1b; John Preme, cf; Howard Clithorne, and Clarence Brown, substitutes. George Caldwell of this city and Dr. Howell of Beloit acted as umpires.

About seven o'clock the party went to Beloit and at eight o'clock the Lakota club members were given a banquet in a Beloit restaurant. A social session and smoker at the Aristos club rooms followed, the Janesville young men returning home on the last car last evening.

NEW OFFICERS OF FIRE AND POLICE COMMISSION NAMED

Harry O. Nowlan Elected President and Arthur G. Jones as Secretary at Meeting Last Monday.

At a meeting of the board of fire and police commissioners held on Monday afternoon in the office of Mayor Nichols in the city hall, the board was organized for the coming year and officers were elected. Harry O. Nowlan, recently appointed to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Dr. J. W. St. John, was elected president, and Arthur G. Jones, another new member, was chosen as secretary. The other members of the board are W. S. Jeffers, George F. Kimball and Walter L. Taylor. It is said the board will be active in its supervision of the fire and police departments.

GAINED SYMPATHY AND HIS FREEDOM THROUGH HYSTERIA

Efforts of Martin Diamond, Alleged Jewel Thief, Have To Win Pity, Brought On Highly Nervous Condition.

In a nervous hysterical condition as the result of attempting to win sympathy for himself, Martin Diamond, the young man accused of the theft of jewelry from Mrs. Emily Kimball in the Jefferson Hotel on Monday, was arraigned in court this morning and his examination set for two o'clock this afternoon. Diamond was shaking as with the ague, when the time for opening court came and on account of his condition his arraignment was postponed until Dr. Charles Sutherland had examined him. The doctor expressed the opinion that the young man was not suffering any mental or physical ailment, but had been brought on the hysteria himself in an effort to secure sympathy. When the charge was explained to Diamond in court he said that he had not taken anything that did not belong to him. He claimed he came into possession of the jewelry by finding them on the floor of the Kimball flat and took them intending to give them to his foreman. He spoke to the judge with difficulty and his remarks were punctuated with sobs.

The value of the property stolen is set forth as $150 in the complaint.

Case Was Dismissed.

The case against Diamond was dismissed this afternoon when he was arraigned for his examination. Mrs. Kimball, the complaining witness, has planned to leave for Vermont tomorrow and did not desire to remain in Janesville and did not desire to remain in Janesville and did not desire to remain in Janesville. Complied with this fact was the possibility that Diamond was not exactly right mentally or in a fit condition to stand trial and as he agreed to leave for his home in New York on the first train, the judge ordered the charges dropped.

ORDERED PRISONER DISCHARGED TODAY

William J. Hutchins, Charged With Wife Abandonment, Released By Court But May Be Re-Arrested.

William J. Hutchins, against whom charges of abandonment of his wife, "Ethel Hutchins," were made, was ordered discharged from the examination by Municipal Judge C. L. Elliott in court this morning. The order in fact annuls the motion of the defendant's attorney that the charges be dismissed, but at the same time makes it possible for Hutchins to be re-arrested for the alleged offense in case the District Attorney should find evidence sufficient to convict the man. The grounds for the discharge were stated by the court that the testimony introduced in the case, while it showed that the defendant was lying, did not show that Hutchins had been legally married to Ethel Zanzinger and therefore he could not be held for that offense. The court stated it would make no recommendations to the District Attorney to file a complaint alleging a misdemeanor, as further investigation might reveal proof of a marriage in which case the court desired that Hutchins should be prosecuted. The evidence, the judge stated, showed that Hutchins was liable for a statutory offense, but it was left to the discretion of the district attorney as to what should be done.

ADVANCE AGENTS ARE HERE TO BILL CITY

Carnum & Bailey's Circus Comes on June 20 Direct From Milwaukee.

Janesville is today in the throes of a bill posting campaign, while an army of poster slingers are decorating all of the available space with the bill posters that proclaim the advent of the Carnum & Bailey circus on Tuesday, June 20. From present information Carnum & Bailey will be the only tented amusement enterprise to visit here this season. In the olden days a circus might decide to exhibit in any certain time on almost a moment's notice. Now, since the Interstate Commerce Commission has become a power in the land, it is necessary to file a circus contract with the commission at least 30 days before the movement of the first advertising car. Up to Saturday no other show had filed contracts with the commission.

The army of billers in the city today are in charge of W. C. St. Clair, manager of car No. 1. In point of service Mr. St. Clair is one of the oldest advance men in the circus business. From the church-like contour of the veteran car manager it would appear that there are many less healthful professions.

According to Mr. St. Clair, there are no less than 200 advance men employed in various capacities ahead of the Carnum & Bailey show. These range from the humble paste maker to the high salaried general agent on whose shoulders rests the responsibility of the entire advance force.

First comes the local contractor who arranges for the show "lot," obtains the city license, purchases food for man and beast and attends to many other details. Next the advertising men with their crews of billposters arrive.

Next in order are the advertising inspectors and the "twenty-four hour men" in the morning four or five press agents drop in with a full quota of "stories" guaranteed under the Pure Food and Drug Act.

TRIBUTES PAID TO EDGERTON VETERANS

Memorial Day Was Fittingly Observed in Tobacco City—Personal
News of Interest.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Edgerton, May 31.—Memorial day in Edgerton was a memorable one. The day was cool and threatening but nothing of any nature occurred to mar the day's ceremonies. Citizens of the city and from the country gathered early in the day in the city of the silent dead to decorate the graves of fallen heroes and loved ones and at the noon hour the work was completed.

The exercises proper began at 1:30 p. m. in Royal hall and a program most fitting to the solemn occasion was carried out. Rev. R. W. Roberts, pastor of the Congregational church, delivered the address. Mason's colored Jubilee singers, who were in the city, were invited to assist in the program, and rendered several stirring patriotic numbers. The occasion, while fittingly observed, lacked somewhat in patriotism, also being minus a band of music as has been the custom in former years.

Robert Carr of Milton Junction, an old time Edgerton resident, was here Tuesday to attend the Decoration day exercises.

Hubert Gove of Hollet was in town, Tuesday morning, for a short stay. Mrs. John White was here from Hollet for the Decoration day observance and to call on relatives and friends.

Will Hudson went to Milwaukee this morning to see his wife, who, a few days since, submitted to an operation there. She is reported as doing nicely.

Mr. and Mrs. P. C. Hudson and son of Madison made a short stop here yesterday at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Dickinson, being homeward bound in their auto from a trip to Chicago.

John Henricks was up from Hollet for Decoration day. He returned today, accompanied by Mrs. Henricks, who has been here since the first of March.

William Klunder, after a visit here of two weeks with his son, W. A. Klunder and family, departed today for his home in Wausau.

Carlton Guests.
Guests at the Carlton hotel, Tuesday, were: C. P. Garat, J. P. Donahoe, Janesville; J. Johnson, Madison; G.

C. Weitz, Z. M. Haas, Richland Center; Chas. McWally and wife, Waunakee; M. Gillet, Fond du Lac; H. B. Johnson, Waterloo; W. C. Chamberlain, C. Graef, Milwaukee; A. B. Grimes and wife, F. A. Mulek, Carl P. Scherer, Chicago; A. J. Koch, Berchwood; E. S. Ketchum, Marshfield; J. L. Weinberg, Philadelphia.

Cold Has Little Effect on Sheep.
Of domestic animals, sheep come first as cold resisters. Sheep have lived for weeks buried in snow. When the great blizzard of March, 1891, swept down upon the sheep, they were dug out alive from the enormous drifts 21 days later. Goats and pigs take, respectively, second and third places.

PARIS GREEN.

Paris Green is made from arsenic and copper. Arsenic being the cheaper is often contained too much and it burns the foliage.

Cheap Paris Green is sometimes made with malt and other adulterants. The kind sold in paper boxes is often years old before it reaches the local stores.

We have always sold one brand of Paris Green which we buy in barrels direct from the chemical factories. It is fresh, holds strength, does not contain arsenic and we give you a full pound.

Don't pay 40c per lb. for paper. Don't ruin your crops with cheap Paris Green. Don't do the work twice. Buy the best.

Our Paris Green is cheaper to use as it does the work. Our price is not high. Badger Drug Co., corner Milwaukee and River streets.

Summer Dresses Are In It

The warm spell which has come on unusually early this season has forced the sale of summer wash dresses. As the dainty white dresses beautifully trimmed. Material as figured muslin, poplin, voiles, marquisette, baliste, Swisses and other leading fabrics. The variety of styles almost bewildering. It is easy to make big statements in the paper and the next thing is to back them up. We find it is better policy to understate rather than overstate. It leaves a few surprises for the customers to discover.

Women find after looking at the dainty styles we show the original creations direct from the largest makers that it is something to enthuse about. They cannot help it. Even to one showing garments every day they do not grow old as there are so many that the same styles may not be seen too often. As low as $4, $5 and $6, you can buy pretty dresses in nice looking white stuff.

One line of linen dresses trimmed with rather heavy embroidery for semi-dress up or hot days we call your particular attention to. Price $6.50.

In Misses' and Ladies' sizes up to 42, any price you want to pay up to $35, $40 and $50.

The Dainty Colored Muslin Dresses

The sale of these is constantly increasing. This is a day when women have to do so many things that it is hard to get the time to have garments dress maker made. The appreciation of busy women is reflected in the increased sales in the summer wearables.

We know you will be favorably impressed with our showing of colored summer dresses and the price range starts low enough to satisfy anyone.

AUTOS ARE SO COMMON today it means riding over dusty roads by hundreds of misses and women that it is simply a necessity to protect dresses.

THE PROTECTION you need can be secured by buying one of many styles of coats. Linens are very popular and we show a full range of styles. There is enough difference in trimmings to make them individual. Other leading materials are crashes, poplins, kahki cloth, etc.

These auto coats are not expensive. We start them at $3.50, others at $18 and all prices between.

federalist party throughout its history and later its successor, the wing party, had consciously the doctrine of a broad construction of the constitution which magnified the authority of the national government in its relation to the states. The old democracy of the South, on the other hand, formulated the doctrine of state rights, whenever it was to its supposed advantage so to do. When the old hero of New Orleans, Andrew Jackson, denounced nullification in South Carolina in the ringing words, "Government must and shall be preserved," he but sounded the tocsin that blazed in a flame of fury in 1861.

Economists have told us that the Civil war was a war of the pocket-book. These philosophers have told us that when Eli Whitney invented the cotton gin the cause of the Civil war was formed and it is easy to trace the enormous importance of the cotton industry to that invention. Cotton raising made increased employment of slave labor a necessity. Slave labor called for slave raising and its subsequent evil, the slave traffic. Slave trading and slave driving led to the lowest form of human degradation and consequent brutality. But you know, my friends, that none of these theories alone explain the scope and magnitude of a struggle so vast and far-reaching as the great conflict of '61. You on the list in this mighty enterprise to "save the Union." You fought to perpetuate our national existence; your comrades in arms laid down their lives that the nation might live. But the root of all this difficulty was slavery—human slavery—that black cloud of iniquity which brought upon us all national disgraces and dishonor. Two and one-half centuries of slavery could be atoned for only by a sacrifice so great that it passed the comprehension of the human mind.

The pathetic wall of the sensitive heart of our grief-stricken President foebly voiced the magnitude of this expiating sacrifice when he said: "Fondly do we hope, fervently do we pray, that this mighty scourge of war may speedily pass away. Yet, if God wills that it continue until all the wealth piled by the bondsmen's two hundred and fifty years of unrequited toil shall be sunk and until every drop of blood drawn with the lash, shall be paid by another drawn with the sword, as was said three thousand years ago, so still it must be said, "The judgments of the Lord are true and righteous altogether."

I make no claims to prophetic power. I have no special skill in announcing prophetic vision, but if I were to hazard a guess on the attitude of the future historians as to what posterity shall regard the greatest event of the 19th century, our supreme act will eclipse them all. He and his fellow historians, looking back with unclouded vision upon the century's events, will chronicle this sublime truth, that in 1861-65 the strongest race that the world has yet produced gave freely of its life and treasure that the weakest of people might be freed from bondage. The Son of Man was lifted up upon the Cross that weak and sinful men might be saved. The flower and chivalry of American manhood gave up its life that his humble brothers of the black race might be free.

"In the beauty of the lilies Christ was born across the sea
With a glory in his bosom that transfigures you and me,
As He died to make men holy, let us die to make men free,
While God is marching on."

We talk of heroic sacrifices for the weak, my friends; thank God that the sublimity of noble sacrifice for others did not stop with Calvary. Bless His name that the privilege of a vicarious atonement is possible today. When ever men who are true and unselfish in their life's purpose are willing to walk away the crime of a nation in the precious blood of the patriot, there we find atonement rising to the sublimity and grandeur of a nation's highest capacity. We talk of service for others; what greater service can a man render to others than that he lay down his life for the weak and lowly?

We, the living, are not ungrateful of the debt of gratitude we owe those honored dead. We honor ourselves when we do homage to them. It is but a feeble expression of our sentimentality when we erect monuments to their memory on the various battlefields of the country. It is an act that savors more of justice and common honesty than of gratitude when the nation gives of its substance in the form of financial recompense to the soldiers now living and the widows and orphans of the dead, but above all monuments and pensions is the love and admiration of a grateful people who have enshrined in their hearts those unobscured sentiments for the heroes living and dead who fought the good fight of faith in the holy cause of human freedom and national honor.

All honor then to those boys in blue, with courage strong and hearts so true,
Who died or lived as the cause might be,
That through all time and eternity
Their hand might be freed from the curse of Cain,
And all men might sing the glad refrain,
"I am my brother's keeper."

Another principle which the Civil war taught us to all, and especially to the young life of our people, is the fact that our American democracy is capable of growth and of generous application to the life of our republic, and that the great American democracy was not to fail, but would continue to furnish hope and inspiration to down-trodden peoples of the world wherever they may be found. In the successful culmination of the great conflict of '61, the most advanced ground was taken in the struggle of the people towards the right of the common man, democracy triumphed and the American nation has lived and prospered.

When Robert Burns, more than a century ago, sang his poem of democracy in the thrilling endowment of "A man's a man for a' that," when he told to the listening world this important truth—"Then let us pray that come it may"

As come it will for a' that,
When man to man the world o'er
Shall brothers be for a' that."

The common man counted for very little in the great communal life and privilege of nations. When the French nation more than a century ago deluged Europe in blood in order to overthrow the principle embodied in the arrogant boast of the prime minister of a Bourbon king when he said, "I am the state," democracy was but an iridescent dream. When our own Jefferson proclaimed to the world in the immortal document of the declaration of independence the self-evident truth "that all men are created equal" he knew and the world knew that a considerable part of the race would be still left in servitude more degrading than that of the bondage of the colonists to the mother country. And then, as if to nullify the glorious principle of the "equality of man" our new Constitution permitted the ownership and traffic in human merchandise. Our laws, with glaring lucubrations, established a system for returning to their owners the fugitive slaves who were running away, not from justice, but from the worst form of injustice. Our Democracy was at stake, Lincoln was right when he said "this nation cannot endure half slave and half free," for this government was "of the people" and the institution of slavery was a living refutation of that fact. No, my scholar hearers, Democracy must either live up to its profession of principles, or else go down and the nation perish. The story of the glorious triumph is written in the annals of the Civil War. Our flag floats to the breeze today with a true swing, no stain it upon it, no inequity mars the blending of its colors in harmonious beauty.

It dwells defiance today to every form of domination. It flings out its glad message everywhere for men to take heart, for the rights of the common man, man, the rights of the most weak and dejected of men are sacred from all encroachments of tyranny and oppression. If its red stripes are typical of the rivulets of blood drawn from the veins of our patriotic dead, its blue field represents the constancy of patriotic loyalty. If its white stripes represent the purity of the lives of our patriots, its bright stars are emblematic of the star of faith that gives hope and courage to the down-trodden of the earth where ever they may look upon its grandeur.

"Oh star spangled banner
I proudly do hail,
Of whose folds the flag
And the home of the brave."

But all the enemies of our nation were not destroyed with the downfall of slavery. The face of our national life is ever looking along the borders of the promised land of good government. The skulking enemy of progress and national honor it at work, even in the piping times of peace. The real lesson then of the Civil War is to be ever with us challenging us with renewed effort and redoubled energy to overcome every foe that threatens the life of our nation, this lesson summons us to active life all of the forces of good government to the rescue of the danger of our own day. It is even yet problematical whether American can conquer all the subtle foes that menace her safety.

It may be our nearness to some of these problems that makes them seem like a bull in the fog unduly large and portentous. The observer of one or more generations sees what appears to be an increased amount of lawlessness and crime unmitigated in a flagrant disregard for law and order. To establish and maintain the nice balance between the over-exercise of authority that might develop into tyranny and oppression, on the one hand and an undue exercise of liberty which may degenerate into license on the other, is one of the great problems of our American life. At present it seems to your speaker that we are on the side of an unwise leniency. We hold human life too cheaply and uphold the majesty and dignity of the law with too great laxness. Pres. Taft has set a worthy example by his refusal to pardon the two wealthy criminals recently before the public eye and possibly this illustrates a counterbalancing tendency towards a much needed reform in the realm of law enforcement. But we hold human life at a very cheap rate. In Japan it is valued ten times more highly. For each 10,000 of population, we have annually eight times as many homicides as Belgium, nine times as many as France, twelve times as many as England, and Wales and twenty-two times as many as Germany. Ten thousand homicides occur in our land yearly and a like number are killed in railroads, factories and mines. This is indeed a land, reckless of human life and how many of these are the victims of greed? Of license and lawlessness? These figures of Prof. Abbot, a reference to deaths due to forms of lawlessness that we as a nation must correct. The "mob spirit", the "race riot", the "black hand", "white cappers", and "lynch law" are forms of anarchy, too dangerous to be longer tolerated. We need a little of the back bone of Uncle Jerry Rink, "who seen his duty and done it" when he ordered the militia to "put bullets in their guns and shoot" in the Milwaukee riots.

It is not necessary to speak at length of those forms of evil and public danger that constitute our nation's peril, the presence of corruption in public life in both high and low places, the multiplication of greed and avarice in many forms of business and commercial life, the presence of private wrong doing and public graft are all too common to need publicity.

The enumeration of these evils suggests the unimpaired forces that are being marshaled to counteract this downward tendency. The bright star of promise shines forth resplendent in an awakened public conscience and an increasing unselfish tendency in public and private service.

The salutary and wholesome work that is being done for the child life of our nation today is one of the encouraging signs of the times. Nearly every state in the Union has enacted humane child labor laws so that childhood may be exempt from the degrading influence of the sweat shop and the factory life. Compulsory education laws have secured to every child in this land the right of an elementary education. Associations without number have been organized for the welfare of children. The young life of our nation is assured of the right of a happy and profitable childhood. The children in the congested parts of our great cities are given a place to get fresh air and a place in which to develop the natural instincts of their nature through well organized play grounds. The children of the poor are cared for in social centers while the mothers work. The children in the slums are surrounded by clean and wholesome influences through the long ministrations of philanthropic men and women who devote their lives to the redemption of down-trodden humanity. The children of our country are given a chance to learn a useful trade after the elementary education necessary for citizenship has been acquired, thus making them self-supporting and self-respecting members of society. The defective among our children are given every advantage that may lead to their future welfare and happiness. Our 20th century seems to have realized the truth announced by the greatest of men more than two thousand years ago, when he crowned the head of childhood with the halo of his blessing and said,—"Or such is the Kingdom of Heaven." The only child today who seems to be out of step with the onward march of our century is the one who born in the pampered and vapory atmosphere of luxury in some way has acquired the delusory idea that he is made of a little better clay than the common herd. We pity such a person for in no sense can he share in the vitality and glory of the free democracy of our American life. If he persists in his indulgence, no other course is open to him but to renounce his citizenship and seek a congenial comradeship among the effete aristocracy of a foreign country.

We are learning to trust with greater and greater sincerity the common run of humanity. We are coming to believe more and more with Meneauy "that the best cure for the evils of Democracy is more Democracy. Municipal state and national house cleaning are quite the order of the day whenever corruption in public life becomes even suspected. We are demanding an honest election, a free ballot and a fair count, and more than that, we insist that our public officers shall stay honest after they have shed each of offices. An awakened and enlightened public conscience is a wholesome safe guard against the ill of public indifference and corruption and our citizenship is rising in its strength to throttle this foe of a nation's life as did the armies of the Nation thwart the enemy of our country in 1861-65.

We came then on the 50th anniversary of the opening of the Civil War conscious as was Webster "that the past at least is secure." Our nation's history in an open book known and read of all men. We glory in her great names and mighty deeds. We honor the statesmen who guided her course through the troublesome days when you acted manfully your part in the great drama of the Civil War. We pay homage to generals and other officers, one and all, who were the military leaders in the greatest war of history. But above all, we admire and revere and venerate the common soldier of the Grand Army of the Republic who fought and labored and died with a heroism never excelled and of patriotic ardor equalled in the dark and stormy days of the Great Rebellion, when our nation's existence hung in the balance and the Nation's life might be preserved and that all men within her borders might be free to enjoy the blessings of liberty and the glory and grandeur of American life.

Blew softest notes ye bugles,
Ye drums, keep solemn time,
To a great nation's heart beats
Strong pulsing in its prime
As, hailing on its marching,
It bows the reverent head,
To pay its meed of honor
To our immortal dead!

DON'T EXERCISE OUR TEETH

Reason Americans Have Such Poor Grinders, According to a Dental Authority.

The reason Americans have such bad teeth is that they don't exercise them enough, according to Dr. Herbert L. Wheeler, president of the American Dental Hygiene council, who is delivering a course of lectures at Columbia university. "We Americans are living in the lap of luxury," said Dr. Wheeler, "in his opening lecture, and our food is so well prepared for us that we don't use our mouths enough. Regular exercise for the teeth is as beneficial as any other kind of gymnastics."

He found from an examination of several hundred savages' teeth that the increased work which their teeth had been made to do had resulted beneficially for their teeth. "It was also a fact that the front teeth of savages were more worn than those of civilized people, being that the savages cut their food with their teeth."

"The four creaked the stream, wading to their waist in the water, their horses left bunched on the south bank, and finally crawled out into a bunch of mesquite. As they crept along through the darkness, whatever doubts Keith might have previously felt regarding the presence on the island of the party sought were dispelled by the unmistakable noise made by numerous horses in the corral. Slowly, testing each step as they advanced, so no sound should betray them, the four men reached the shelter of the stockade. The older of the 'Bar X' men lifted himself by his hands, and peered cautiously over.

"Eight horses in that," he announced soberly; then turned to Keith. "Say, Jack, what do you figure this shenanigan to be, anyhow? You don't reckon it's old Sanchez's outfit, do you?"

"Likely as not, Joe, though I never saw him around here."

Joe filled his cheek with tobacco, staring about through the darkness.

"Well, if that of cues is here now, we'll be sure in for a fight," he commented positively.

They rounded the corral fence on hands and knees, crawled into a bunch of bushes somewhat to the rear of the silent, desolate-looking cabin, and lay down flat behind a pile of saddles, from which position they could plainly discern the rear door. There was no movement, no evidence anywhere that a living soul was about the place. Keith could barely distinguish that it was Hriston lying next to him.

"Had their camp over there in the corner of the corral when I was here before," he said in a whisper. "Where do you suppose they can be now?"

The wary scout lifted his head, sniffing into the darkness like a pointer dog.

"West of the cabin that, out of their mind, most likely. I smell tobacco."

Even as the words left his lips a man came sauntering slowly around the eastern corner, his outline barely visible, but the red glow of a pipe showing plainly. He stopped, directly facing them, yawning sleepily, and then turned the other corner. Another moment and they distinctly heard a voice:

"Hush! up there now, Manuel, an' turn out! It's your watch; wake up, dem yers—maybe that'll bring yer life."

The remedy applied to the sleeper must have been efficacious, as, an instant later, another figure slouched into view, the new arrival rubbing his eyes with one hand, the other clutching a short-barreled gun. From the high peak of his hat it was evident this new guard was a Mexican.

He walked to the corner, glanced along the east side wall toward the front of the cabin, and then, apparently satisfied the coast was clear, started toward the stream, shuffling along within a foot of where Keith lay flat on the ground. A moment later the man heard him splashing softly in the water, and Keith rolled over, his lips at Hriston's ear.

"Slip down there, Ben," he whispered, "and quiet that fellow. I'll find out how many are on the west side. Do the job without any noise."

He waited until the scout had disappeared like a snake, not even a rustling leaf telling of his passage, and then silently crept forward himself, yet with less caution, until he was able to peer about the corner of the cabin and dimly distinguish the blanketed forms of several men lying close to against the side wall. They rested so nearly together it was difficult to separate them in that darkness, stars giving the only light, but he finally determined their number at five. Five, the Mexican would make six, and there would surely be another guard posted out in the front—even there in the corral. Then the eighth man—Hawley, without doubt—must be in the cabin. At the thought Keith's teeth clenched, and he had to struggle to control his passion. But do, that would not do. He must discover that exactly where the girl was located; after that they would attend to the cure. Before creeping back to the others, he made quick examination along the rear of the cabin, but could find no visible point of weakness. He tried to recall from memory the nature of the lock on that back door, but could remember nothing except an ordinary wooden latch. If he could insert a knife into the crack that might very easily be dislodged. He drew his hunting knife for the attempt, and, first glancing about, perceived a man creeping toward him. It proved to be Hriston.

"Fixed the greaser all right, cup, and I reckon he'll be quiet for an hour or two. Look what he slashed me; struck a pack of playin' keards, or I'd a got my ticket." The front of his blouse was cut wide open, and Keith thought he perceived a stain of blood.

"Pricked you as it was, didn't he?"

"Opened the skin. Thought the cuss had given up, an' got careless. What's 'round to the west?"

Keith's lips closed, his hand shutting hard on the knife.

"Five, and another out in front; that leaves the eighth man inside, living our fellows up closer, and post them where they can cover those fellows asleep, while I make an effort at breaking in here."

Hriston crawled back like a snail, and confident the others would do their part, Keith thrust his knife blade deep into the narrow crack and began probing after the latch. In spite of all caution this effort caused a slight noise, and suddenly he started back at the sound of a woman's voice:

"What do you want? I am armed, and will fire through the door if you do not go away!"

His heart leaping with excitement, Keith put his lips close to the crack.

"Hope," he exclaimed as loudly as he dared. "This is Keith; open the door."

He could hear a little smothered cry break from her lips, and then the sound of a bar being hastily removed. An instant, and the door opened slightly, just wide enough to permit her slender figure to slip through. She grasped him with her hands, turning his face to the light of the stars, and he could feel her form tremble.

"Oh, I knew you would come! I knew you would come!" she sobbed, the words barely audible.

The man's lips set firmly, yet he held her close to him, looking her not to break down now.

"It's all right, little girl," he said pleadingly, "we've got you safe, but there is a light to be attended to. Come with me; I must ask you a question or two."

He drew her back into the fringe of bushes, placing her safely behind the attack of mesquite. She was not crying any more, just clinging to him, as though she could never again hear to let him go.

"Oh, Jack, it is so good just to feel you near again."

"Yes, dear," soothingly, "and it is good to hear you say Jack, but tell me one thing—is any one else in the cabin? Is Hawley here?"

"No, no! He left us early the first morning. I haven't either seen or heard of him since. The men have left me alone since we got here; have had the cabin all to myself until tonight. I have not suffered, only mentally—from dread of what they intended doing with me—until tonight. Three men rode in here just before sundown—two Mexicans and an Indian. One of them was an awful looking old man, with a scar on his cheek, and a face that made me shudder. He didn't see me, but I saw him through the window, and he had such strange eyes. All the men acted as though they were afraid of him, and I heard him say he didn't care what Hawley's orders were, he was going to sleep inside; if the girl didn't like it she could take the other room. I didn't know what to do—oh, I was so afraid of him; but what he said gave me an idea, and I went into the back room, and put up a bar across the door. When he came in he tried to go through it, but I never answered; and finally he lay down and went to sleep. I sat there in the dark so long, and when I heard you—I thought it must be some of the others."

He stroked her hair, whispering words of encouragement.

"That is all done with now, Hope, and we'll have those fellows at our mercy in another half-hour. But I must go now to the boys; lie here behind these saddles, and don't move until I come for you. I can trust you to remain right here."

"Yes," he was bending over, and her eyes were upon his face. Suddenly, obeying an irresistible impulse, he clasped her to him, and their lips met.

"Sweetheart," he whispered softly. "He could not hear her answer, but her arms were about his neck."

CHAPTER XXXV.
The Cabin Taken.

His heart beating with new happiness, yet conscious of the stern duty still confronting him, Keith joined the others, giving them, in a whisper, a hurried account of Hope's release from the cabin, and of what she had to report.

"It's old Juan Sanchez in the front room, boys," he added soberly, "and there is ten thousand dollars reward out for him, dead or alive."

Joe of the "Bar X" drew in his breath sharply.

"I'll sure be dead then," he muttered, "that cuss will never be got no other way."

"They went at it in the grim silent manner of the West, wasting little time, feeling no mercy. One by one the unconscious sleepers were aroused, each waking to find a steel barrel pressing against his forehead, and to hear a stern voice say ominously:

"Not a move, Johnny; yes, that's a gun; now get up quietly, and step out here." Resistance was useless, and the five, rendered weaponless, were herded back toward the corral. They all belonged to Hawley's outfit; one, a black-whiskered curly brute Hriston remembered having seen in Sheridan. There was no time to deal with them then, and a "Bar X" man was placed on guard, with orders to shoot at the slightest suspicious movement.

The Indian, then, would be guarding the front of the house, and Sanchez sleeping inside. Well, the former could be left alone; his chance of escape would be small enough with Fairbairn and Neb on the opposite bank. Old Sanchez was the villain they wanted—dead or alive. With this in view, and anxious to make a quick job of it, the three entered the back room, and, revolvers in hand, groped their way across to the connecting door. As Hope had described, this had been securely fastened by a stout wooden bar. Hriston forced it from the sockets, not without some slight noise, and Keith, crouching down at one side, lifted the latch.

"Keep down low, boys," he cautioned, "where he can't hit you."

With one quick push he flung the door wide open, and a red flash lit the room. There were two sharp reports, the bullets crashing into the wall behind them, the sudden blaze of flame revealing the front door open, and with it the black outline of a man's figure. Two of the men fired in instant response, leaping recklessly forward; but were as quickly left behind in the darkness, the outer door slammed in their faces. Outside there was a snarl of rage, another shot, a fierce cuss in Spanish; then silence.

The Logical View.
She—I am going to get a pretty piece of all-over lace today to begin a new dress.
He—I should think you would get it for the dress' finish.
She—What do you mean?
He—It ought to be the end if it's all over.

ACKNOWLEDGE IT.
Janesville Has to Bow to the Inevitable—Scores of Citizens Prove It.
After reading the public statement of this representative citizen of Janesville given below, you must come to this conclusion: A remedy which cured years ago, which has kept the kidneys in good health since, can be relied upon to perform the same work in other cases. Read this:
Mrs. William Molina, 210 N. Academy St., Janesville, Wis., says: "About two years ago I had an attack of kidney trouble and at that time I got a supply of Doan's Kidney Pills at the People's Drug Co. The use of only two boxes cured me. Other members of my family have taken Doan's Kidney Pills with satisfactory results and I therefore know this remedy to be a reliable one." (Statement given in August, 1908.)
The Benefit Listed.
Mrs. Molina was interviewed on September 23, 1910, and she said: "I gladly confirm my former endorsement of Doan's Kidney Pills. They permanently rid me of kidney complaint and during the past two years, I have had no further need of a kidney medicine."
